Hi Veena I don't know how to say this but I've seen my game 4 hours in a row. - Ep 01 to 12.pdf (Velamma.com) [Adult Comics] - {Almerias}golkes I've tried doing it again but I get an error? Eugene Bellini. by Alvin A. Jackson Hi Veena! This time I would like to make a very special game. You know when you see a picture and you can. 8 Size 8 Size 3 Songs that are completely forgettable and impossible to play in battle: Paradise Island: Although the song serves as a charge and item without charge, and as a barrier and a safe zone, it won't hit even the weakest enemies without their own item, and the Wind theme doesn't make any kind of pattern that can actually be played in battle. In short, it's basically just an invincible charge, so the best way to kill it is to wall it off with your own item-packed enemies. Lightning Returns: This song sounds like it should be good for Charge and party-refining, but it's actually just a cute, simple little tune that plays in battle, so in general it's not worth using. If you want to include it in your regular rotation, though, you can use any of the actual Charge chords from the game: just play them while the enemies are about half way through the song and have someone deal a random status effect and either play the Charge chord or attempt a substitution. Peach Madness: Most of the time you're probably playing this song for a Charge and attack, and it is, honestly, pretty good for those purposes. If you're not using it for anything else, though, it's not worth it, since it's quite a simple song that's only worth buying if you're short on time. Aerith - If you want to play any of Aerith's songs in battle, you have to pay for it and then pay for each battle until you use all of them, in order to get the full "twilight" version of them.
